I. INTRODUCTION

A. Background

1. At its fortieth session held in October 1989, the Executive Committee took note of, but did not formally approve, the initial 1990 General Programmes budget presented to it at that session by the High Commissioner and totalling $ 414.4 million. It had become obvious by then that the level of anticipated income for General Programmes in 1989 would be insufficient to cover the General Programmes approved by the thirty-ninth session of the Committee in the amount of $ 428.8 million.[1/]

2. In view of these developments, and particularly concerned that the funding problem should not recur, the Executive Committee, while only noting the proposed 1990 budget, decided that obligations under General Programmes for the first six months of that year should not exceed $190 million, including the absorption of 50 per cent of the unliquidated 1989 obligations.[2/] The maximum level of this carry-over was set at $40 million.[3/]

3. At the same time, the Committee also decided to establish

> "a Temporary Working Group composed of Representatives of the Executive Committee Member States and UNHCR to review thoroughly the content of UNHCR's General Programmes and other assistance activities with a view to examining the issues relevant to the effective use of funds and administration of programmes and projects. In this connection, particular attention will be given by the Working Group to administrative and budgetary reforms and the division of responsibilities between UNHCR and other institutions and agencies...."[4/]

4. The Committee further decided that an Extraordinary Session of the Executive Committee would be held in late May/early June, primarily to consider the issues addressed by the Temporary Working Group, and to authorize the level of UNHCR obligations for the second half of 1990.[5/]

5. This extraordinary meeting of the Executive Committee was held at the Palais des Nations in Geneva from 28 to 30 May 1990. It had before it the report of the Temporary Working Group (Document A/AC.96/742) which, in fulfilling its mandate per paragraph 3 above, had commenced its deliberations on 2 November 1989 and concluded them on 21 May 1990 when its report was adopted by consensus and forwarded for consideration by the Executive Committee. The report reflects findings and recommendations made by the Temporary Working Group in four main areas: budgetary matters; administrative and management matters; programme matters; and matters relating to co-operation between UNHCR and other agencies.

6. The Committee also had before it documents submitted by the High Commissioner to facilitate its deliberations and decisions on the obligation level for the second half of 1990. These included document A/AC.96/743 which provided a financial update of UNHCR programmes in the period since the meeting of the fortieth session of the Executive Committee; document A/AC.96/744 which described the impact on UNHCR activities of the financial crisis it has been experiencing; document A/AC.96/745 which described recent developments in the Office's fund-raising activities, and a Conference Room Paper, A/AC.96/ES/CRP.2, which reported on the financial status of the Office as at the time of the extraordinary session. Developments that had occurred in UNHCR's protection and programme activities since January 1990 were described in Conference Room Paper A/AC.96/ES/CRP.1.

C. Opening Statement by the Chairman of the Executive Committee

13. The meeting of the extraordinary session of the Executive Committee was opened by the Chairman of the Executive Committee, His Excellency Dr. Fredo Dannenbring of the Federal Republic of Germany. In his opening statement, the Chairman welcomed to their first formal meetings of the Executive Committee the new High Commissioner, Mr. Thorvald Stoltenberg, the new Deputy High Commissioner, Mr. Douglas Stafford, and the delegations of the newly independent Republic of Namibia and of the German Democratic Republic, both of which were attending for the first time as, respectively, member and observer. In welcoming these delegations, the Chairman expressed his hope that other world-wide refugee situations would also benefit from changes similar to those which had seen the birth of Namibia as an independent nation. He also hoped that the "spirit of Berlin" would prevail globally, with all that this implies for the peaceful breaking down of walls which divide people and for restoring to them their freedom of movement and their basic human rights. He noted that fundamental political changes had already occurred in Eastern Europe and that democratic developments in Africa, Latin America and Asia seemed to be on the way. These could only strengthen international solidarity in easing the plight of the millions of refugees throughout the world.

14. The Chairman then reviewed the background to the extraordinary session of the Committee as summarized in paragraphs 2 to 4 above and said that the adoption of the report of the Temporary Working Group and the approval of the budget for 1990 would bring to an end a complex and often difficult exercize which would have important ramifications for the future work of both the Committee and UNHCR. The objective of the exercize had been to preserve protection and assistance for refugees and improve the delivery of both, even in times of reduced availability of resources.

15. The Chairman hoped in this regard that the adoption of a consensus report and the spirit of compromise which had prevailed throughout the work of the Temporary Working Group would not only continue during the deliberations of the session, but bring new vigour, determination and international co-operation to achieving lasting humanitarian solutions for refugees, while at the same time ensuring that basic needs are met and fundamental protection principles are respected.

16. Turning to the financial situation of UNHCR, Dr. Dannenbring reported that since October 1989 there had been no particular signs of improvements and referred to the concerns expressed in this connection in the High Commissioner's letter to governments of 14 March 1990, and his, the Chairman's, own letter of 7 May 1990. It was necessary, said the Chairman, that the extraordinary session remember, as it considered the UNHCR General Programmes budget, that many important Special Programmes were also still not funded at all, or seriously underfunded.

17. The Chairman then said that, following on decisions taken in October 1989, the extraordinary session and the High Commissioner would now take substantive actions to streamline UNHCR's management and operations. However, there was an even more important conceptual policy-planning exercize to be commenced urgently: the open-ended Executive Committee Working Group to examine protection and solutions in a coherent and comprehensive manner which the Executive Committee in October 1989 requested the High Commissioner, in consultation with the Chairman of the Executive Committee, to convene.

18. Concluding, the Chairman expressed confidence that, travelling in the same boat as they all were, the members of the Executive Committee would pass safely through the troubled waters and stormy weather and all arrive together on solid ground from which to start future work in the spirit of international burden-sharing, solidarity and friendship.

D. Adoption of the Agenda and Other Organizational Matters

19. The Executive Committee adopted by consensus the following agenda (A/AC.96/746):

1. Opening of the session

2. Adoption of the agenda and other organizational matters.

3. Statement by the High Commissioner

4. Consideration of the Report of the Executive Committee Temporary Working Group

5. a) Review of requirements for General Programmes in 1990 and Projections for 1991

   b) Review of projected overall programme activities in 1990 and the status of funding

6. Review of major developments concerning refugees in 1990

7. Any other business

8. Closing of the session

20. During its fortieth session held in October 1989, the Executive Committee approved the applications made by several Government Observer delegations to participate in its Sub-Committees of the Whole on International Protection and on Administrative and Financial Matters as well as in its informal sessions in 1990. However, some Government Observer delegations were not able to submit their applications on time, or at all. It was decided that these applications could be resubmitted to the next formal meeting of the Committee, i.e. the extraordinary session. As a result, consideration of this matter was placed under item 2 of the agenda of the extraordinary session.

The Committee however decided that in order to make more time available to governments to apply for participation, consideration of this matter would be deferred to agenda item 7. Accordingly, the Committee considered and approved the applications in question as contained in Conference Room Paper A/AC.96/ES/CRP.6. The list of these Government Observer delegations is reflected in this Report as a decision of the Committee (ref. paragraph 34.)

II. STATEMENT BY THE HIGH COMMISSIONER

21. In his introductory statement, the High Commissioner, Mr. Thorvald Stoltenberg, said that as much as the international refugee situation was a reflection of the world's political health, the international community's ability to cope with that problem was an indication of its moral health. In a world that was changing from confrontational relations towards common concern for mutual problems such as the environment, terrorism and drugs, the High Commissioner was concerned to ensure that refugee and broader migratory problems also got onto the international political agenda. There, it was important that the problem be addressed and dealt with not just on the basis of charity, but on a realistic basis which recognized the all-important place of the issue for the common good of all mankind.

22. As far as the challenge of migration was concerned, the international community had to address this problem through a combination of development-oriented measures as well as by tackling the root causes of exoduses. South-East Asia and the problem of Vietnamese boat people were examples where, if such approaches were not taken, the goodwill of governments in the region would be further eroded and the institution of first asylum would break down. The ability to protect and assist genuine refugees would be seriously hampered, if not made impossible. Such a collapse, and the resulting chaos could not be allowed to occur.

23. Against the background of the financial crisis facing his Office, the High Commissioner had devised a strategy to deal with the problem, based on six pillars. These pillars, whose nature and objectives he then explained in full, were: (i) better use of UNHCR's human and material resources; (ii) efforts to find new donors, particularly, (iii) in the private sector, although his preliminary efforts in this sector revealed that refugees were not a major priority from a funding point of view; (iv) the use, to the extent possible within his competence, of political tools to draw attention, and urge preventive solutions, to refugee-producing crises; (v) vigorous promotion of voluntary repatriation; and (vi) greater focus on and closer interactions with the traditional donors who were the basis of UNHCR's budget and economies.

24. Dealing in more detail with the financial situation of the Office, the High Commissioner said he could not fail to express his serious preoccupations over the tight schedule with respect to financial obligations for the remainder of 1990. At the same time, the Office had no indication as to what income it was likely to receive in 1991. He was therefore hopeful that the budget proposal being presented to the Committee for its consideration, which had resulted from a painful process of reductions in assistance to refugees, their host governments and in UNHCR staff levels, would be approved.

25. The High Commissioner thanked donors for the increase in their contributions in recent years and gave particular thanks to the Prime Minister of Sweden as well as the Chairman of the Executive Committee for their respective recent efforts urging support for UNHCR. Yet, he said, the refugee situation in poor host nations, particularly in Africa, was deteriorating, against a background of worsening social and economic national conditions and hardships which the refugee presence only exacerbated. In order to enable both the refugees and the local population to break out of the vicious circle of poverty, there was a definite need to complement UNHCR's limited investments in the humanitarian field with wider resources from those agencies with competence in the field of development. The High Commissioner said he had already taken initiatives in this area with the relevant United Nations and other international organizations, and intended to pursue the matter with vigour. He would rely on the support of members of the Executive Committee in the various fora where such matters are discussed.

26. Turning to specific international protection matters, the High Commissioner said that while human rights were increasingly respected in parts of the world where they had hitherto been ignored, he was concerned by more frequent and serious cases of refoulement, push-offs, expulsion, extradition, detention and a hardening of attitudes towards asylum-seekers. There were also, however, some positive and important events that gave rise to optimism, such as changes in countries of origin to facilitate the voluntary repatriation of refugees, and the lifting by two states of their respective geographical reservations to the 1951 Convention.

27. Concluding, Mr. Stoltenberg expressed his conviction that, when applied constructively and realistically to the future, UNHCR's forty years of experience and maturity would make it better equipped to face the realities of the 1990s. The Office had to turn to the task of redefining and readapting its role to a changing world. The High Commissioner was confident that in this exercize, the close relationship which had developed between the Executive Committee and UNHCR would prove to be a valuable asset. At the same time, it was important that the large number of meetings that had recently been necessary between those two bodies should be reduced, to release more time and energy to be devoted to protecting and assisting refugees.

III. GENERAL (Items 4 - 8)

28. The full account of the deliberations of the Committee, including the statements or other interventions made by delegations on all the agenda items of the meeting, and the closing statements by the Chairman and the High Commissioner, are contained in the Summary Records of the Session issued as documents A/AC.96/SR.448 through A/AC.96/SR.452.

IV. DECISIONS AND CONCLUSIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

A. Report of the Temporary Working Group

29. The Report of the above-mentioned Working Group, as contained in document A/AC.96/742, was adopted by consensus with the words "at least" inserted between the words "measures" and "through" in the third line of paragraph 26.

30. Noting the consensus, the Chairman said that the Report represented the completion of very important work affecting UNHCR and the protection and assistance of refugees, but also foreshadowed a lot of the hard work that still lay ahead. He proposed that the Report should now be submitted to the High Commissioner for his consideration and implementation. He also proposed that the Report be given wide distribution, for reference and follow-up as appropriate, to the international community, i.e. governments, and the relevant intergovernmental, non-governmental and other international agencies. The Committee so concurred.

B. Conclusions and Decisions on Assistance Activities - General Programmes

31. The Executive Committee,

Recalling its decisions at its fortieth session to hold an extraordinary session of the Executive Committee in late May/early June 1990 to inter-alia authorize the level of UNHCR obligations for the second half of 1990 (so as not to exceed the realistic level of contributions likely to become available that year);

Having reviewed the up-date of UNHCR programmes and budget for 1990 and the financial status as submitted by the High Commissioner in document A/AC.96/743;

Having taken note that the carry-over in unliquidated obligations from 1989 to 1990 authorized by the fortieth session of the Executive Committee up to a maximum of $40 million actually amounted to $38 million to be borne from 1990 income;

Having taken note, also, of recent developments in regard to UNHCR's fund raising efforts as contained in document A/AC.96/745;

Approves, within the context of its Conclusions and Decisions on Assistance Activities as recorded in Chapter III/I - Part A of document A/AC.96/737, the revised target for General Programmes activities in 1990 totalling $340,855,900 - (including the $10 million Emergency Fund) as summarized in Annex 1 of document A/AC.96/743 and which, together with the carry-over of $38,030,000 from 1989, amounts to $378,885,900.

C. Conclusions on Common Efforts to Mobilize Resources

32. The Executive Committee,

Recalls the adoption by consensus of the report of its Temporary Working Group and its recommendations in document A/AC.96/742;

Reasserts its conviction that the protection of refugees and provision for their needs is a priority task for the international community;

Reaffirms its commitment to international solidarity in meeting this humanitarian obligation;

Expresses its appreciation for the generosity of the international community in providing for refugees asylum, material support and durable solutions (voluntary repatriation, local settlement and resettlement);

Notes that this represents an international co-operative effort to which a large number of countries contribute in a variety of ways for their common purpose;

Notes in particular the special mandate which the international community has assigned to UNHCR in this connection;

Expresses its deep concern about the serious financial problems facing UNHCR and their severe impact on the High Commissioner's ability to provide for the needs of refugees;

And consequently calls on the international community and UNHCR to join in common efforts to mobilize resources for UNHCR through:

a) additional contributions in cash or in kind, depending on national capabilities;

b) joint action with UNHCR to appeal to governments which do not yet contribute directly to UNHCR resources to consider becoming contributors according to their capabilities;

c) enhanced co-operation with non-governmental sources in programme funding and implementation;

d) continuing administrative improvements in the Office of UNHCR to enhance the efficiency of its programme delivery;

e) joint efforts to develop co-operation with other international organizations with a view to increasing the resources and services available for the care of refugees and for the promotion of durable solutions;

f) taking such actions as are possible and appropriate within each national administration to facilitate and support in practical ways the work of UNHCR.

D. Conclusions on Staff Matters

33. The Executive Committee,

Recalling the recommendations contained in the report of the Temporary Working Group of the Executive Committee, document A/AC.96/742, on the streamlining of administrative matters and staffing levels of the UNHCR;

Noting the efforts that the High Commissioner is making towards reducing personnel and administrative costs which represent a significant proportion of UNHCR's overall support costs;

Aware of the hardship that affected staff members will face as a result of reductions in staffing levels and of the effect such reductions would have on staff morale;

Encouraged by the existing close co-operation and constructive dialogue between the High Commissioner and his staff and aware of the dedication and accumulated experience of UNHCR staff in the humanitarian work of the United Nations and its affiliated organizations;

a) supports fully the High Commissioner's action to phase carefully reductions in staffing levels by adopting a retrenchment policy and mechanisms which make maximum use of attrition, vacancy management, redeployment to any newly-created emergency posts within UNHCR and transfer to other United Nations agencies whenever qualified and suitable candidates are available;

b) endorses fully the High Commissioner's intention to enter into negotiations with the United Nations Secretary-General and Heads of other specialized agencies within the common system to give priority to all suitably qualified UNHCR staff who are affected by the reductions when filling vacancies in their own organizations;

c) requests the United Nations Secretary-General to assist the High Commissioner in implementing this decision by taking timely and appropriate initiatives within his Office and with the Heads of other specialized agencies within the common system.

E. Government Observer Participation in 1990

34. Pursuant to its deliberations as indicated in paragraph 20 of this Report, the Committee approved the applications by the following Government Observer delegations:

German Democratic Republic, India, Iraq, Spain, Syrian Arab Republic.

F. Interpretative Declarations relating to the Conclusions and Decisions of the Committee

35. In the course of the deliberations leading to the adoption of the Conclusions on Staff Matters, the Chairman explained that sub-paragraph (c) of that Conclusion would be understood to constitute a request to him from the Committee to in turn request the High Commissioner to make the necessary approaches to the Secretary-General of the United Nations. The Committee accordingly adopted the Conclusion subject to this understanding.
